

An Insider's Perspective on the War in Israel

I am thrilled to announce that after two previously successful speaking tours in the US and Canada, I will be returning to the United States for another speaking tour this spring. My presentation offers an educational perspective on Israel, providing knowledge and tools that foster informed discourse. In a time when misinformation seems pervasive across academic, political, media, and social platforms, I will delve into the current situation in Israel and Gaza. The discussion will highlight historical, religious, cultural, and geographical contexts, as well as their profound impact on geopolitical dynamics and the rise of antisemitism. This speaking tour is tailored for members of faith communities, business leaders, and students alike, aiming to demystify the complexities surrounding Israel. It offers insights that transcend headlines and stereotypes. My objective is to cultivate a space for learning, dialogue, and understanding, empowering audiences to develop their own informed perspectives on this region that now has far-reaching effects into their own backyard. Join me in unraveling the ongoing events and uncovering the common values that unite us.
